

Three Groups Deplore Lack of Stock Cars

There is "absolutely no justification for railways failing to provide livestock cars for regular shipments from the Peace River area in the past five weeks."

This was the emphatic view expressed today by President Hugh W. Allen of the Alberta Livestock and Cattle Raisers' Association.

Mr. Allen was commenting on "reaction of railway officials, livestock exchanges and packhouse boards" to his recent remarks concerning the acute shortage of stock cars.

Today Mr. Allen charged that "the area of the west coast and 'end of the line' were getting 'no service at all'."

"Heavy losses are being inflicted on producers in the most critical that can be in any way justified," he said in the livestock car shortage. Mr. Allen was strongly supported by executive officials of the Alberta Farmers' Union and the United Farmers of Alberta.

SUPPORT ALLEN
Following telegrams was sent to the Board of Transport Commissioners in Ottawa today by Carl J. Simpfendorfer, president of the Alberta Farmers' Union.

"Board of directors Alberta Farmers' Union meeting in Edmonton today wish to draw your attention to the fact that the livestock car shortage and grain car shortage at numerous points resulting in buyers' market and severe financial losses to farmers."

"General impression shortage unwarranted, as no bottleneck occurred during war when traffic was unusually heavy. Demand never taken to have situation remedied at this time. These circumstances necessitate greater efficiency in distribution of stock and live cars."

The United Farmers of Alberta support the AFU in the action to force the stock car shortage. The matter is being taken up jointly by the two farm bodies with heads of the CNR and CPR in Winnipeg.

"The UFA urges every effort be made to have sufficient stock cars available to take goods to market in districts where trucking is not feasible."

AFU officials in Edmonton said that except for a few loads of stock shipped by truck there has been no movement of livestock from the Peace River area in the past five weeks.

"Mr. Allen stated he had no doubt

British Art Director Seeks Aid For Group

Canadian railway officials will be asked to grant reduced travelling fares to British cultural and arts groups touring Canada.

Announcement that he would lead a special committee to coordinate the touring of British drama and music companies was made in Edmonton today by Sir Shuldham Redgrave, K.C.V.O., of London, England, director of the Redgrave Committee, Department of the British Council.

Sir Shuldham is in Edmonton today to give a lecture to the British Council, a government-subsidized organization, operating since 1953 to promote understanding between the British and other nations through an exchange of cultural activities and information on the British way of life.

SPONSOR TOURS
It sponsors tours throughout various countries by British theatre companies, orchestras, and promotes the exchange of books, documents, films, and other cultural materials. The Council is also active in arranging inter-university exchange of students and professors.

While several theatre companies and British orchestras are touring in Eastern Canada under the sponsorship of the Council, high travelling rates have prohibited them from reaching the west, Sir Shuldham said.

MEET NEXT WEEK
"In many other countries, such groups are offered reduced travelling fares by the railways. Such consideration will be sought by the Council in Canada."

Sir Shuldham will meet Canadian railway officials in Montreal next week to bring the suggestion before them, he said.

The British Council has been successful in sending some of its touring companies and fine arts exhibitions behind the Iron Curtain," the official said. Tours of artists into Russian-dominated European areas was arranged through the Council's representatives in Poland, Yugoslavia and Austria.

Man Arrested On Obstruction

Douglas Foster, 11053 108 street, was charged with obstructing a police car today.

His arrest Monday evening followed an alleged domestic quarrel in which he is said to have struck his wife from the front of police officers, charged the officers, and used abusive language.

NEEDS MORE STUDY

Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Freight Dilemma

Freight rate question all but stumped the recent meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce at Vancouver recently, past-president of the association, C. Bruce Hill, St. Catharines, Ont., said in Edmonton today.

Elevation of the problem revealed so many complexities a decision was reached to give further study to the question before recommending any action.

One theory advanced was that heavily reduced freight rates in the east might have caused the influx of industry to the western district and Western Canadian areas.

Manufacturers now located in the east might feel that there was no reason to set up Western Canadian plants if they were to obtain low freight rates on goods

The situation on the Northern Alberta street was "extreme" and it is realized that railways were distributing cars available in the best advantage. He pointed out, however, that the Peace River area was a live-up this year there are still no prospects for relief and it is doing anything about matters.

"If the railways continue their policy of distributing cars to districts closer to marketing centres, the more remote districts can look for no relief and the livestock industry will continue to take a beating," Mr. Allen continued.

Builders Map 1949 Action

Action for 1949 by Alberta localities of the Amalgamated Building and Construction Workers was charted Sunday at a conference in Calgary.

Activities in 1949 it was decided would be directed towards winning uniform wage scales, a union suitable clause and higher standards for apprentices.

Union will also approach the Alberta Board of Industrial Relations with a request for four per cent holiday pay.

Failing this, it was resolved that the union be active in all wage agreements for 1949.

A request that representatives of the union be included on apprentices boards will also be addressed to the Minister of Labour and Industry.

The industry, the unions claimed, is doing a poor job of introducing young men to building crafts and skills.

Officers elected at the conference included R. Fletcher, Calgary, president, and George Wright, Calgary, secretary.

"Twenty delegates from Calgary, Edmonton, Medicine Hat, Red Deer and Camrose attended the conference."

World Peace Key Said Arms

Permanent world peace is still beyond man's reach but temporary peace, at this critical stage in the history of the world, can be achieved by a return to the "balance-of-power" system.

It was the opinion of Eric Morse of Ottawa, national executive of the United Nations Association in Canada, who described to more than 200 persons at McDougall Club Monday night, the problems facing the United Nations.

Accept for two brief periods, Mr. Morse said, peace has never existed in 6,000 years of history. It was his contention however, peace could be maintained for an "undetermined period" if the democracies "armed themselves to offset Russia's strength."

Of the two great powers, Russia and the United States," he said, "Russia would be the aggressor. But only if she were sure of victory."

"It is, in fact," said Mr. Morse, "the European Recovery Plan, the Marshall Plan, the Atlantic Defense pact are so important to world peace."

After addressing the Edmonton City Club Tuesday, Mr. Morse will leave for the Atlantic Defense pact, the return of an Ottawa-Vancouver tour.

Introducing the speaker was Mrs. Cora Caselman, U.N.A. national executive member. Chairman was Dr. William D. McDougall, president, U.N.A. Edmonton branch.

Young Housewife Swallows Poison

A 35-year-old Edmonton housewife was rushed to hospital today after swallowing a bottle of household cleaning solution Monday night shortly after arriving home from work.

The package of home permanent wave solution containing potassium bromide was found in the kitchen.

She is the third victim of poisoning in the city to be rushed to Edmonton hospitals in two days.

Paul Lavigne is recovering today from the effects of the poisoning. He is in a drinking bout, James Downey, is in critical condition in which he is said to have drunk himself into a coma after being admitted for alcoholic poisoning and liver disease.

The poisoning was occasioned by a fall on Sunday.

It was made by the Chamber of Commerce that there was a heavy reduced freight rates in the east might have caused the influx of industry to the western district and Western Canadian areas.

Not Enough Yet

There is good news in the announcement of the city commissioners that all arrangements have been completed by the Glendon Development Co., Ltd., for an early start on Edmonton's new hotel.

But the encouragement in this news should not prevent Mayor Harry D. Ainlay from following up the campaign for an extension to the Macdonald hotel or, if this is too late, from seeking to interest other hotel companies in building in this city.

The 520-odd rooms which the Glendon Development Co., structure will add to hotel accommodation in Edmonton will be tremendously welcome. But they will not even begin to offer a satisfactory solution to this city's pressing hotel problem.

With 1,600 fewer hotel rooms than Calgary has to offer, Edmonton requires a minimum of 2,000 more rooms than are available at present. At the present rate of the city's growth, that deficit minimum requirement may have doubled in another year.

With the Federation of Canadian Mayors and Municipalities, Mayor Ainlay will appear before the dominion cabinet on November 12. That would be the logical time to renew Edmonton's appeal for a fulfilment of the CNR's promise to enlarge the facilities of the Macdonald.

If, as seems likely, the CNR has definitely decided against any such extension at present, Mayor Ainlay's presence in the East should provide an excellent opportunity to engage the attention of other hotel investors with regard to establishing hotels in this city.

It should not be a difficult piece of salesmanship.

Perhaps no city in North America offers more safe and certain hotel investment. The population is here. The volume of traffic through Edmonton is assured. And the need for additional hotel accommodation is desperate.

From Edmonton's standpoint, additional hotel space constitutes one of the major civic problems.

Expansion of the valuable tourist industry depends upon it. Adequate sample rooms and accommodations for travelling salesmen are essential to the retail trade.

The new Glendon hotel will help, but it is not nearly enough.

Move to the Right in France

A general and significant reaction against Communism is apparent in the French election of members to the Council of the Republic which has reduced the Communist representation from 84 to 16 and has given 99 seats to General Charles de Gaulle's party.

Of parallel significance is the large vote accorded the Radical Socialists, which, despite the name, is the Conservative party. These latter will hold 50 seats in the new Council, as against 45 won by straight Socialists.

The Council of the Republic, which, under the constitution of October 13, 1946, was created to replace the pre-war Senate, has no direct legislative function. Legislation is entirely within the functions of the National Assembly.

But while the Council has no legislative power, it is supposed, under the concept of the new constitution, to wield wide influence as an advisory chamber.

General de Gaulle's victory, then, coupled with that of the Conservative group does not place the rightist elements in a constitutional position to demand cabinet changes.

But it does definitely strengthen the hand of de Gaulle, in a moral way, in his repeated appeals for general elections to the National Assembly out of which the government is formed.

This very obvious trend to the right in France cannot be ignored by the President of the Republic. And it is a reasonable assumption that the next cabinet crisis, which usually occurs every two or three months, will be followed, not by a desperate attempt to "form a government out of the parties in the present Assembly, but by a general appeal to the people.

Such an appeal, it may be confidently expected, will result in the diminution of the Communists as a factor in the government of France.

This trend away from Communism is important not only as it affects France as a vital force in European recovery, but as it affects the course of events throughout all the threatened countries of Europe.

The French example will be a powerful and effective one.

A Useful Trade Index

The provincial department of Industries and labor and its statisticians are to be commended for the interest and exhaustiveness of the new Alberta Trade Index.

This list of Alberta industries, which makes up a comfortably fat booklet, will not only be invaluable to business men and investors, but will provide a source of healthy amusement for Alberta residents who can contemplate the extent of the activities in this province with pleased astonishment.

There has been a good deal of comment lately from visitors and others, notably Lord Beaverbrook and Henry G. Birks, new president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, about the rapid expansion and industrial destiny of this province.

The Alberta Trade Index translates these glowing commendations into hard, substantial statistics.

The volume is worth having and worth studying.

The department has done an excellent job.

ODDS AND ENDS

By Harold L. Weir

Indiscovered Murders Are Many Say Medicos

The American Medical Association has come forward with the rather startling assertion that thousands of undiscovered murders are committed each year on the North American continent.

The Journal of the Association declares that one death in five in the U.S. is a result of a doctor's negligence. It states that in the U.S. alone, about 300,000 deaths each year are known or suspected to have resulted from violence or from some obscure cause that is WEIRD. It never sufficiently explained.

Out of these 300,000 deaths are derived the 13,000 murders that are officially recognized annually. The American Medical Association says the percentage of deaths is produced by the fact that the number of deaths is much higher than it officially appears.

In other words, it may be possible, they say, that as many as one death in every ten or fifteen might be homicide.

It is a disturbing thought and it is a disturbing thought that the medical profession is producing more deaths than it is saving.

And this is the sort of thing, clearly, which the American Medical Association has in mind when it talks about the horror of murder in the United States and, presumably to some extent, in other countries.

nurse whose sentimentality is sufficiently distorted to lend a hand.

But among relatives and friends whose primitive pity is not disciplined by a code of ethics and whose intelligence is not great enough to resist the impulses of a perverted compassion, there are some who doubtless utter the words "It is a tragedy" with a purity to the bedside of a beloved sufferer by acts of commission or omission.

The helping hand in such deaths is not readily detected. A slight irregularity in the administration of patient medicines the slightest act of deliberate neglect could do the trick.

It would be a bold doctor who would try murder no matter how much his suspicions were aroused in such cases where a calculated intent would constitute murder in the eyes of the law.

Boredom Killings

Unhappily, these speculations about the extent of the evil which is infinitely more difficult to deal with and a variety of factors is produced by the medical profession.

And this is the sort of thing, clearly, which the American Medical Association has in mind when it talks about the horror of murder in the United States and, presumably to some extent, in other countries.

I refer to the homicides which might easily be the result of a doctor's negligence, which are motivated, not by compassion, but by boredom.

Letters to the Editor

Country Divided

Editor, Bulletin.—Mr. Traylor is to be commended on his viewpoint and I'm sure Mr. K. J. R. would be much happier back home in England along with 96 per cent of the English immigrants in this country.

One of English descent but strictly Canadian and I cannot see how Canada can hope to amount to much with people like Mrs. K. J. R. who refuse to call themselves Canadian unless Canada happens to be the British.

I would like to compliment Mr. Lee on his very good article about children, my heart goes out to them.

How nice to have a breathing space between the Darling and Lilybly episodes.

EDMONTON.

Welcome Assistance

Editor, Bulletin.—At the annual meeting of the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Motor Association held on October 28th, a resolution was adopted whereby I was instructed to convey to you the sincere thanks of the AMA Northern Division for your welcome cooperation and assistance during the past year.

Yours very truly,

W. C. CANTON, Sec.-Mgr. of Alberta Motor Association.

Children In Pool Halls

Editor, Bulletin.—In answer to "A Student and Teen Ager" I really don't know how to answer the letter. I'm not struck by any means. But I'm at a disadvantage as I'm not allowed to name places in particular as far as I know, of regarding these pool halls.

I don't know your age "Teen Ager" but you read my letter. I was dealing with students under the age of 18, who on a law in this city are to be kept from pool halls, regardless of the law in the U.S.

If you're under that age, you have no business in there.

If you're over that age, you were certainly out of line when you wrote as my letter was not meant for you.

One particular bill I have in mind, which I won't mention for obvious reasons, has children as I had mentioned previously ranging from 12-18 years.

Do you think it's right to let them continue if they expect to have no business in there.

Too Dreadful

As a matter of fact, it is such a dreadful thought that I refuse to keep it.

It does happen, of course. But it happens so exceedingly rarely that it is hardly worth consideration.

All human experience tends to show that the hippest and sickest people are the most violent and the most vicious in the civilized person.

The gentleman and self-sacrificing that are poured out around almost every sickbed are beyond his ken.

If the full truth were known, there are thousands upon thousands of little boys and girls in Canada who are being and vigorous and patient upon the sick and the aged.

Let it be why the implications of the sensational assertion of the American Medical Association are so completely revolting and so utterly incredible.

Let it be why the American Medical Association would be performing a much heavier duty if it composed a little state about the horror of the sickroom and had less to say about the sickness than so easily stalks into it.

Offers Formula For Maintaining Peace of World

For the past 10 years I have written for Canadian papers I have never seen the name of Russia, right or wrong, downplayed as they now are.

Almost every day brings letters from people of all ages and both sexes who express a profound sense of frustration. Many seem to be as discouraged about union rights and political parties as almost all about the world peace.

But above all they reveal a tragic feeling that the world is caught in a web of despair to be crushed between two great powers visibly pulling toward a clash.

What To Do For Peace

What can ordinary people, you and I do for peace? Perhaps the first thing that we can do is to be first made in the minds of men, and never mentally or morally throw up our hands and quit.

Thoughts "give" peace the most powerful force in creation, good stronger than evil. There is no gift between the peoples of the world more deep or dear for thought than the gift of peace.

2. Understand that the main cause of two world wars was that nationalism, welded to capitalism, had become obsolete as a sufficient agency to enable human beings to live decent lives in relative peace. The great need was, and still is, for law above the nations.

3. Face the fact that the challenge of the world Communist movement is acute, posing not only a moral challenge to the sworn enemy, capitalism, but also a challenge to the principles of democracy and a democratic socialism, its western rival.

4. Show like the plague Strasser's monstrous motto which is printed on the masthead of the Chicago Tribune: "My country, right or wrong—I will support you to the death." If you support your country's policies when you are honestly convinced that those policies are the best for the world, right or wrong.

Seed Cleaning Plant Mooted for Innisfail

RED DEER, Nov. 9.—Plans to establish a municipal seed cleaning plant at Innisfail were furthered at a meeting of the Agricultural Service Board held there. D. Pearson, president and other members of the board present were J. T. Eaglesham, district agriculturist; J. A. Woods, R. H. Edgar, V. Bjorkeland, and Secretary W. H. Stringer. A. M. Wilson, field crops commissioner for the Department of Agriculture; W. J. Edgar and B. Parsons, Innisfail; W. Lewis, Dickson; A. Laydon, Kneehill Valley; and J. McEachern, Red Deer, took part in the discussion.

A delegation of farmers had attended the last meeting of the Council of the Municipal District of Red Deer asking that a seed cleaning plant be established at Innisfail. They were willing to raise $10,000 if the MD and the provincial government would each provide equal sums. They felt that there was great need for the plant. The Council approved the plan in principle.

Addressing the Service Board, Mr. Wilson suggested that the best way to start the scheme was for the interested farmers to form an association and apply to the Minister of Agriculture for recognition. This would give the MD an established organization to deal with. The government was anxious to help provide clean seed.

A suggestion was made that the MD should own and operate the plant but it was generally felt that the farmers should own and operate the business, with members on the board from the MD Council and the Department of Agriculture. The meeting endorsed a resolution urging the MD Council to do all in its power to further the scheme, after the farmers concerned had organized and their group had been approved. Meetings for purpose of organizing will be lined up in the near future.

Some difficulty was reported by Mr. Eaglesham in interesting farmers in plans for control of tuberculous and Bang's disease in cattle. This was partly due to lack of veterinarian working directly on the scheme. The board passed a resolution asking the federal government

The year was 1840...

... the month, May—an historic cargo was aboard the schooner "Fly" when she stood out from Gooderham & Worts wharf.

As her master, James Gooden, felt the life of Lake Ontario's swells, it is unlikely that his thoughts went beyond the shipmaster's routine concern for his cargo's safe delivery. But this was no ordinary cargo—for the "Fly" carried the first recorded shipment of manufactured goods from Upper Canada!

The "Fly" sailed only to Montreal. Today, 108 years later, by ship and train, truck and plane, Canadian goods go to every part of the world. The enterprising men who led Canada to its present position as a great trading nation were nourished by the freedom of thought and action won for them at the polling place.

When you cast your ballot at every election—municipal, provincial, federal—you exercise a duty and privilege planned, worked, and fought for by your forefathers. Your vote protects the future of your children. To fail in this duty is to be less than a good citizen.

Drew Places Unity Above Party Victory

CHARLOTTETOWN, Nov. 8.—(CP)—George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said last night that the unity of Canada is more important to him than a party victory in the next federal election.

In a fitting speech to the most important of his political friends, Mr. Drew, who was elected to the House of Commons in 1945, said that the unity of Canada is more important to him than a party victory in the next federal election.

He told the overflowed audience that he had visited the chamber where the Fathers of Confederation met in 1867, and that he was proud to be a part of the same. Mr. Drew, recalling that the island was the birthplace of a strong and united efficient system of government throughout the world, said that he was proud to be a part of the same.

WOMAN IS SAID REFUSED PHONE TO REPORT FIRE

RED DEER, Nov. 8.—(CP)—Refusal of a Red Deer family to allow a neighbor to use their phone to summon the city fire department is under investigation by the Red Deer fire department today.

Mrs. Fred Soderberg said the neighbor, Mrs. W. H. Hartley, refused use of the Hartley telephone yesterday when Mrs. Soderberg called to report a fire in her brother-in-law's trailer.

Mrs. Hartley said Mrs. Soderberg did not say she wanted to report a fire when she called about a fire when she called.

Chief A. G. Taylor to investigate the incident and render a report.

Big U.S. Navy Exercise Held

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—(AP)—What the United States navy called its most extensive North Atlantic maneuvers were climaxed today by an "invasion" of Newfoundland by units of the second fleet.

The theoretical landing was accomplished, according to reports received by the navy, despite strong submarine "attacks" on the 100 units of the second fleet.

Units of the second marine brigade, wearing special Arctic equipment, swam ashore on northern Argentina beaches. They were under the command of Vice Admiral J. B. Duncan, commanding the maneuvers, said the navy.

Fewer Seek Jobs In Prairie Region

Higher Employment Rate And Migration Reasons

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—(CP)—Seasonal shifts in employment involving about 200,000 workers on the labor market, the department of labor reported yesterday.

In its monthly manpower survey, the department said the number of jobs at Oct. 31 was up 12,000 from a month before and increases are expected for the next few months.

SHORTAGE OF POWER
Apart from seasonal shifts from farming and other summer-active industry, the survey said severe shortages of hydro-electric power may affect employment in some areas.

In addition, shortages of key materials will likely continue to interrupt the continuity of work in some industries.

With seasonal employment registering for work in greater numbers, there were 90,000 unemployed applicants listed with National Employment Service offices at Oct. 31, including Calgary, 1,650 (191); Edmonton, 1,353 (1,260); Regina, 688 (580); Saskatoon, 1,378 (1,341); Winnipeg, 4,423 (2,841); Fort William, Ont., 298 (1,080); New Westminster, B.C., 2,111 (1,311); Vancouver, 10,908 (1,512); Victoria, 2,018 (340).

At the same time the number of jobs open had shrunk from 68,000 to 54,000.

Of the unemployed applicants, 65,000 were men and 24,000 were women. In the prairie region there were 12,000 unemployed applicants and 22,000 unfilled vacancies.

LOGGING STARTS
At the same time 2,000 fewer than a year ago, which reflects both the expansion of employment and the migration of workers to other regions. The logging season has started.

In the Thunder Bay area, there are 8,200 men employed and 10,000 unemployed applicants and 2,000 unfilled vacancies. The labor surplus which is concentrated in the Vancouver area, is the result of a continued influx of workers from the prairies and the eastern regions.

In no way indicates depressed conditions in the industries of the region—the contrast of the unemployment in the prairie region during the post-war period has been greater in British Columbia.

Academy Elects
PARIS, Nov. 8.—(Reuters)—The French Academy of Moral and Political Sciences yesterday elected Charles Maurras, the British author, to succeed the late Nicholas Murray Butler, former president of the Council of the League of Nations.

WEDNESDAY STORE HOURS: 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.—DIAL 914

AFTER A CONFERENCE with President Roosevelt and military chiefs of Britain and the United States, American Army leaders leave the White House. From the left are Chief of Staff General George Marshall; Maj.-Gen. H. N. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Force; and Brig.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, chief of the War Plans Division.

High Level of Efficiency Reached Under Marshall

For example, one of the subjects on which he asked to be met was the command, its difficulties and its problems. Another was George C. Marshall.

Aspin and again General Connelley said to me, "We cannot escape another great war. When we go to war it will be in company with our allies. Systems of single command will have to be worked out. We must not accept the 'co-ordination' concept under which each is compelled to work. We must insist on individual and single responsibility—leaders will have to learn how to overcome nationalistic considerations in the conduct of campaigns. One man who can do it is Marshall—he is close to being a genius."

GOOD ANSWER NEEDED
With that memory I determined that my answer should be short, emphatic, and based on reasons in which I honestly believed. No oratory, plausible argument, or glittering generalities would impress anyone entitled to be labeled genius by Fox Conner.

The question before me was at most unlimited in its implications, and no qualifications for approach or for its probability of success of the average hard-working Army officer of my size. Naturally I had pursued the military courses of the Army's school system. Soon after completing the War College in 1928, I went to serve as a special assistant in the office of the Assistant Secretary of War, where my duties were quickly expanded to include confidential work for the Chief of Staff of the Army.

The years devoted to work of this kind opened up to me an almost new world. During that time I met and worked with many people whose opinion I respected highly, in both military and civil life. Among these an outstanding figure was Mr. Bernard Baruch for whom my admiration was immense.

And I felt believe that if Mr. Baruch's recommendations for universal price fixing and his organizational plans had been completely and promptly adopted in December, 1941, this world would have saved billions in money—possibly much in time and therefore in lives.

AFTER SIX YEARS
From tasks such as these I had gone, in 1935, to the Philippines. Now, six years later, I was back in the War Department, the nation was at war, and the Philippines were in deadly danger.

With bleak conclusions I marched back to the Chief of Staff, "General." I said, "It will be a long time before major reinforcements can go to the Philippines, longer than the garrison can hold out with no direct assistance. If the enemy commits major forces to their reduction, but we must do everything for them that is humanly possible. The people of China, of the Philip-ines, of the Dutch East Indies will be watching us. They may excuse failure but they will not excuse abandonment. Their trust and friendship are important to us. Our base must be Australia, and we must start at once to expand it and to secure our communications to it. In this last we dare not fail. We must take great risks and spend any amount of money required."

He merely replied, "I agree with you." His tone implied that I had been given the problem as a check on an answer he had already reached. He added, "You best be sure to save them. With that I went to work."

NEW YEAR'S NOTE
On my dark memorandum, I find that by accident survived, I find this note, made on Jan. 1, 1942. It was written at the time the War was in its second year, and we were getting some things on the road to Australia. The air plan included four pursuit groups, two heavy, two medium, and one light bombardment group. But we were not to have ships—and we needed them very much. There are life in the matter. There are life in the matter. There are life in the matter.

ALWAYS WELCOME
My brother was already in war work in the government and his hours were scarcely less exacting than mine. Yet every night when I reached their home, regardless of the hour, which averaged something about midnight, both would be waiting up for me with a snack of midnight supper and a pot of tea. I cannot remember ever seeing their home in daylight during all the months I lived in Washington.

As early as December, 1941, we had a snack of midnight supper and a pot of tea. I cannot remember ever seeing their home in daylight during all the months I lived in Washington.

The man we sent to Australia to lead up this particular effort was a former Secretary of War, Colonel, soon Brigadier General, Pat-forces of the two nations. The forces saw no reason to change prior conclusions that the European front should be the first object of our attack.

NEVER QUESTIONED
Of my own knowledge, the weight of the plan to turn the widest of the power against the enemy, before attempting an all-out campaign against Japan has been questioned by any student of strategy. However—and here was the rub—it was easy enough to state the purpose as a principle but it was to prove difficult to do so.

Within the War Department staff basic plans for European invasion came slowly to take shape during January and February 1942. At any time, the war was the critical element in the problem. Yet everywhere delay was imposed upon us in prohibited nothing to wait about unpreparedness. It is a characteristic of military problems that they yield to nothing but harsh reality; things must be reduced to elemental simplicity and answers must be clear. Almost obvious.

Everywhere men and materials were scarce. The war was a Japanese aggression had not then reached full tide, and everything upon which we in the United States could lay our hands had been put to the test. It was necessary to go to the South Pacific to prevent complete isolation. Aside from preserving lines of air and sea communications to Australia, we had to hold the Indian Ocean at all costs; otherwise we would be cut off from the British Empire.

LITTLE MATERIAL
We had to do the best we could, with almost nothing to distribute but deficits, in attempting the onslaughts on Germany. It was for victory had to look for plans for the day when the airplanes, the battle fleets, the shipping, the land craft, and the fighting formations would allow us to pass to the offensive and to maintain it. It was in this realm of the future, a future so uncertain as to be almost of make-believe—that the projected plan for European invasion had to take its final form.

Throughout the first winter of the war the news from the East Indian region was increasingly bad and the Navy did not have sufficient strength to undertake major operations far from a friendly base. Every troop and cargo ship upon which we could lay our hands was dispatched hurriedly to the South-west Pacific. But we had no little. The transport of personnel without heavy equipment had to be in no way elaborate arrangements when the ships were to be used.

On that trip the Queen Mary was put into a Brazilian port for fuel. We were hurried to intercept a radio from an Italian in Rio who reported her presence in the Italian government and upon her departure actually gave the direction upon which she set out to sea.

For the next week we lived in terror, fearing that the Axis might be able to plant their hand upon such a nest of submarines in the South Atlantic as to make it almost impossible for her to evade them completely.

I do not remember whether General Marshall knew of this incident at the time, but it was the type of thing that we kept from him when possible. There was no use burdening his mind with the worries that we were forced to carry to bed with us. He had enough of his own.

The Operations Division of the War Department General Staff was set up in Washington in March, 1942, three months after Pearl Harbor. It was a command post for General MacArthur, from which he could direct American forces on all the fighting fronts. General Eisenhower, promoted to a temporary major generality, was named chief of this crucial division.

Tomorrow's installment of "Crusade in Europe" describes how the division was organized. It includes a summary of how General Marshall picked his chief subordinate, and an outline of the great debate which was already shaping up among the staffs of the War Department.

UP IN THE AIR with no visible means of support is Art Warburton, 27-year-old Edmonton insurance salesman. Twice dominion gymnastic champion he is seen here in a high backwards somersault. Pipe in the back drop is eleven and one-half feet from the floor. Takeoff was from a standard oak springboard.

FOR THIS TOPSY-TURVY position flashed at 1/1,000 part of a second, Art took a run, cartwheel on the mat, and flipped sideways. Something like an Arabian jump done vertically it is a comparatively rare stunt even among professional performers. Son of a triple high bar expert, Art does many tricks.

SPLIT-SECOND timing and perfect co-ordination are needed to perform this difficult screw somersault. Spinning forward and twisting in a mass of intricate movements Art came down on his feet facing left. Mastery of such a trick demands endless hours of practice.

EASY AS PIE is this back layout somersault for experienced acrobats. All you have to do is bounce straight up, press your head back, lift with your chest, and wait while you turn. The movements are exactly the same as those for a back, or a half gainer dive but with a little more "oomph." Art can do these in his sleep—but he was awake, he says, when he did this one for the benefit of The Bulletin photographer.

ALBERTANS AT FAIR IN COLOR

Albertans attending the Toronto Royal Winter Fair will be equipped with gauzy canes prepared by the Alberta Department of Agriculture.

The canes are the familiar stockman type with a crooked handle and are a brilliant yellow and red in color.

Along the shaft of the cane artists of the Department of Public Works have emblazoned the words "Agriculture—Our Key Industry" in blue.

The minister of agriculture, Hon. David A. Gre, left Monday for the Toronto show. He will be followed later in the week by deputy minister O. S. Longman and other officials of the department.

Dickens Group

The Charles Dickens' book "Our Mutual Friend" will be studied at the regular meeting of the Dickens Fellowship, Edmonton Branch, at the Museum of Arts building Wednesday at 8:15 p.m.

Vancouver Troupe Thrills City Audience

Musically speaking, it may have been slightly off par. But for entertainment, Night in Vienna fills the bill nicely.

Playing to an appreciative audience at Westglen Auditorium Monday night, this Basal Hoffsall production from Vancouver proved that everyone benefits when Canadian talent stays at home.

The performance, presented in Edmonton by the Gyro Club, will be repeated Tuesday at 8:15 p.m.

Senior musical director of the famous Theatre Under the Stars, Mr. Hoffsall directed his program. Night in Vienna, two years ago to encourage his Theatre starts to remain in Canada by finding them winter bookings.

This is probably only a first appearance and it is not clear that such a necessary one. Most Canadians want to stay at home if there is a place for them.

Night in Vienna isn't an attempt to replace opera or light opera on the stage. It's something entirely different.

In costume, the four artists presented act two from Martha and act five and part of act three from Faust in between. Most Canadians want to stay at home if there is a place for them.

He Spurned Fame and Fortune for Family Fare Here

Falling in the category of unusual avocations is the hobby of 27-year-old Art Warburton, Edmonton insurance salesman.

Dominion gymnastic champion, in 1920 and again in 1946, many years associated with the "Pro Rec" in Vancouver, associate physical director of the Central "Y" in Winnipeg from 1942 to 1945, later physical director of the "Y" in Edmonton, Art has just recently returned from the London Life Insurance School at London, Ont.

Now he hopes to embark upon a successful career selling insurance.

This new venture seems far removed from his first love which is to swing and fly about with the greatest of ease but it follows from a decision Art has made. One that he has made many times before, and one he intends to stick to.

It is simply to be that "Doc" and "the kids" are looked after first. These: Dorothy, his wife; little Art, four years; Teas, 18 months; are one man's world.

FAMILY LIFE

A world for which he has chosen as Edmonton hunk and the Canadian way of life in preference to the glamour, fame or whatever else the professional stage has to offer an acrobat.

Art resigned his job as physical director of the Edmonton "Y" so that he could devote more time to his family.

Yet, he is still far from losing interest in physical work and his sunny gymnastic activities.

He is still firm in the conviction that the "Y" work, including organized social activities as well as games, tumbling, swimming, gymnastics, dancing, is the ideal way to build sound bodies and sound minds.

To this end he dedicates himself Wednesday and Thursday of each week. He instructs YMCA leaders in the "ups and downs" of advance acrobatics, also acts as side-camp to Miss Jean Osmack, provincial health and recreation leader, who instructs the group in ballroom dancing.

REFUSE OFFER

In 1945 he was the topstapler in a three-man handballing team in Winnipeg called the "Tiger Trio" who rejected bookings with American agents.

Before that to Winnipeg he passed up other opportunities to turn pro, preferring to stay on as a simple director at the Central "Y" there. One such of these was a large part of the United Nations decision to establish the separate State of Israel. The continuation of this support and sympathy, he added, will do much to keep the leadership of the country toward the western side of the "Cort Curtin."

Communist influence in the Holy Land, up to the formation of the State of Israel, was negligible, Rev. Hull stated, but with the formation of the state the arrival of a Russian ambassador presented a situation deserving close scrutiny.

Great loyalty toward Great Britain, evoked among the Israeli people, Rev. Hull said, and at the time it would have been possible to bring the country to the Commonwealth as another Dominion.

Reconstruction of the country under the State of Israel government is proceeding rapidly, despite the sabotage of many of its functions.

Eighteen new colonies, with up to 1,000 people each, have been built since the government took over, transforming their desert into gardens.

New board of the Kwanan Club for 1949 were presented by president Alex Cunningham. Included are vice-presidents Don Avilion, Bill Cromb, Glen Taylor and directors Harry Maddison, Bob Chapman, Cliff Gaiser, Tom Pulton, Monty Ross, Edgar Bailey, Bob Bradburn, Jim McDiarmid and Bill Forrester.

CITY TO OBSERVE REMEMBRANCE DAY

Retail stores, industry, the courts, provincial and municipal government offices will be closed Thursday, Remembrance Day.

Remembrance Day is a statutory holiday on which the nation pays tribute to the dead of two great wars.

Essential services will be maintained by civic employees, and post office and railway freight and express offices will maintain partial holiday services.

There will be no letter carrier service, and post office wickets will be open for limited hours. Dispatch of express and mail will carry on as usual.

Schools will be closed.

Canada Urged to Support New Holy Land State

Canada should encourage recognition of the State of Israel, Rev. William L. Hull told members of the Kwanan Club at their meeting in the Macdonald hotel Monday.

Rev. Hull has recently returned to his native Canada from Palestine where he served as a missionary since 1935 with the exception of the war years from 1940 to 1945.

Canada, Rev. Hull said, played a large part in the formation of the State of Israel. The continuation of this support and sympathy, he added, will do much to keep the leadership of the country toward the western side of the "Cort Curtin."

Council Approves Additional Expense

Contract for Snow Awarded to Mix Bros.

Approval was given last night by city council to a recommendation by the commissioners that $121,473 additional funds be made available to the city engineer's department.

Over expenditures in this department were occasioned by abnormal conditions during the spring break-up which necessitated considerable expenditures on streets and paving.

Maintenance of gravelled and paved roads, dust abatement, increased levy from the Workers' Compensation Board and wages increases are other factors in the over expenditure by the department.

Accepted the commissioners' recommendation that contract for snow removal on the North Side of the river be let to Mix Brothers Construction Co. This company submitted a bid of eight cents per cubic yard mile for hauling, snow removal on the South Side will be done by city engineer's force.

Request from the Edmonton Local Council of Women, urging city council to appoint more women to civic boards, was referred to the nominating committee of council dealing with personnel appointments to these boards.

Accepted the recommendation of the Town Planning Commission that property at 10253 89 street be removed from one family to local business district.

Granted permission to C. Woodward Ltd., to construct an elevator on and below the side walk immediately east of the store and about 35 feet north of 102 avenue. The elevator will form part of the sidewalk when closed.

Request from the Strathcona branch of the Canadian Legion for grant of $750.00 to take care of taxes on the organization's property was referred to the finance committee for consideration.

Referred to the commissioners a request from McKernan District Community League for installation of adequate fire alarm system to serve the greatly increased number of homes in the area. Commissioners indicated this protection was being provided in the near future.

Polio Fatal To District Girl

Police took the life of 13-year-old girl at Entwistle over last weekend according to reports received at the office of Dr. J. A. Gillett, provincial director of communicable diseases.

This brings the death toll from the disease in the province to 23 and the count of victims to 283.

Previous high record for the scourge in Alberta was 256 in 1927, so only three more cases will make this year's polio total the highest in provincial history.

Young Ballerina Scores In Sparkling Debut

A program unique to Edmonton in having the University Ballet Club, and consequently Miss Pryma's program of expressive dances was particularly enjoyable.

Miss Pryma has danced in such European countries as Lwiv, Vienna, Salzburg, Rome, and Geneva. She began her training at the age of five, and made her first stage appearance at 14.

Now 21, she certainly seems to know her business, for in all her numbers there was the mark of the ballet artist who has her technique under complete control and uses it to express to the utmost all the mood and feeling of the music to which she is dancing.

While I haven't had the opportunity to learn more about ballet, than to know the difference between a pas de deux and a pas de trois, I certainly appreciate Miss Pryma's artistry, even though she was under the influence of some extent to the small stage of the Masonic Temple.

Royal Child Causes Excitement in Empire

A royal wail is due to be heard any day from the historic rooms of Buckingham Palace.

The baby born to Princess Elizabeth will be the first royal child born at the palace since 1859.

And as a child born to the King's daughter and the heiress presumptive, the baby will be a practically unique place in British history.

Historians go back as far as the 13th century to find a similar case.

Long before the Princess knew herself whether her baby is a boy or girl, London will be heralding the birth.

The lair and danger connected in past centuries with the birth of an heir to the British throne are so much a thing of the past that a substitute child and kidnapping the true heir are colorful history.

The King has decided it is not necessary to have a cabinet minister at the royal birth.

The custom dated back to a crisis in Britain 200 years when the wife of King James the Second gave birth to a boy at St. James' Palace.

No minister or responsible dignitary was present, and the new prince was destined to become known as "The Old Pretender."

Humor had it that the infant was not really a Stuart. However, that is not what he was called the old pretender.

Whether the baby is a boy or a girl, the child will be a second in line to the throne.

If the first child is a daughter and a boy is born later, there is no doubt that precedence over the daughter will become next to Elizabeth in line for the throne.

In either case, the child will be
